

Calendar REST API

For the development of this REST API I've used MYSQL database because I had some experience with it and for the connection to the database I used PDO since it can be used to connect and control data for a very broad selection of databases and from the research that I have done PDO seems to be the most secured and easy way to access and modify any database.

I have decided to create the API from scratch instead of using a framework and I used Postman to test it.

When it comes to the Authentication I have used tokens.

For a better structure I have decided to use classes.
